

THE WONDERFUL FAMILY

This year we went on a trip in England. Despite everything we have visited, the most important thing was doing it with friends and also spending time with our host family. It was our first time in England with high school and it was pretty cool. But Elsa already came in England twice with her family.

Well... We lived for four days in a house with really nice hosts called Tracy and Russell. Despite the fact that the house was in renovation, it was lovely and modern. They had an awesome bathroom with a beautiful walk-in shower, it was really better than ours. Our hosts also had two cats who were so cute. One of them, called Flow, was thin and brown. And the other, called Betty, was a bit fat and grey and according to Tracy she was also «stupid». We discovered Tracy was right, because she literally spent her time on one of us suitcases and it was really funny. We tried everything to make her leave, but she was determined to do it again and again. In spite of the fact we were afraid of cats, it went well: we managed to touch them and even to stroke them, they were fluffy.

Betty

Moreover, we really appreciate that they trusted us enough to let us sleep at the time we wanted and they let us wake up on our own. About that, there was something we didn't enjoy at all: the Sena's alarm nearly made us have a heart attack every single morning except the last day when she decided to put a great and calm song "Let it go" by James Bay.

Tracy and Russell were truly attentive as well. They made us some tea everyday, they also asked us how well our day was going.

Contrary to our expectations, they talked with us a lot, gave us towels and drawers to tidy our stuff, and they ate with us almost everyday. They were also really interested in us and what we did during the journey. They suggested us going in some places they like: for example they talked to us about an antique shop, but they warned us not to buy anything because it was really expensive!

Tracy and Russell wanted to show us how beautiful was their town. So they took us to awesome places like a cinema-restaurant with a lot of special works of art. But we couldn't see the cinema because there was a movie ongoing. Then we went to a typical English pub which had a special and very colourful decoration. There was also good music, so there was a great vibe. We drank some lemonade, talked, and we had a great time. All this reminded us the music video of the song "Galway Girl" by Ed Sheeran, that we all love! And we discovered Tracy was a fan of Ed Sheeran but not Russell... We didn't get it at all! How can someone dislike his songs? Anyway, when we came back home, Tracy put the whole album of Ed Sheeran as loud as possible, so that we could hear it even if we were upstairs and just in order to get Russell angry! It was really funny!

The pub

Well finally... We realized it wasn't as hard to understand them maybe sometimes we were really confused of how fast they could talk but nothing really scary. We had a great stay at their home. We hope we will see them again.